Video 3: Library catalog (approximately 2:22 minutes)

In Part 3 of this tutorial series, I am going to demonstrate how to conduct an initial search in the Library catalog using sample topics, edit the search, and access sources. You can use these same techniques I'm demonstrating to search for and find sources related to your own topics. Even if you are a distance student, you can still access the Library's print books by 'requesting' them within our catalog. When you do this, a copy of the book is mailed to the home address we have on file for you. To confirm your home address, reach out to our Circulation Desk by sending an email to libcirc, l-i-b-c-i-r-c, at uidaho.edu. Click on the screen to visit our Off-Campus Access guide, which explains how to request and return print books as a distance student.

Summit library program (3:33 – 3:39)

Summit allows you to check-out physical items owned by libraries at other Northwest colleges and universities and pick them at the University of Idaho Library.

If you are a distance student, you can also have them delivered to your home address.

You can usually check-out Summit items for an initial 6 weeks and then you can request a renewal if you need the item longer.

Renewals are not automatic, and you will receive an email if it is approved.

Criminology Library Research Series: Part 1

Boolean review

OR and parentheses

When using OR and parentheses (), each result will contain at least one of the keywords connected by OR and included in the parentheses.

For example, a search ("classical school" OR Beccaria) would ensure that every result mentioned the phrase classical school or the word Beccaria.

Results could also include both, but that is not required.
